Information from the Register of Natural Persons

The Register of Natural persons is one of the databases of national importance, which includes the data about more than 3 million persons. The Register has been created as a single system for registration of the population of the country. It accumulates information about the given name, surname of inhabitants, their place of residence, personal identification documents, etc. This data is used for statistical surveys, tax forecasting and calculation, organizing of elections and other processes of national importance.
